SOUTH BEND, INDIANA – Springwise Facility Management, Inc., a leading National Facility Management and Maintenance services firm, is pleased to announce it is the first facility management company in the US to achieve an International Organization for Standardization (ISO) 9001:2008 quality management system certification. This successful certification is based on an independent audit performed by National Quality Assurance, Inc. (NQA), one of the largest and most respected ISO certification auditors in the world and is accredited by the ANSI-ASQ National Accreditation Board (ANAB). Auditors from NQA examined the firm's quality management and control systems, called Quality Springwise Systems (QSS), and verified the company had upheld the quality standards flawlessly. The certification review did not find any non-conformance issues and did not suggest any changes to QSS thus achieving a rare perfect audit score under the rigorous new standard. As the first company accredited by the NQA to achieve the ISO 9001:2008 award for Property and Facilities Management, Springwise's registration provides a distinction in the industry, recognizing the company's focus to deliver on its promise of customer satisfaction. The successful ISO 9001:2008 registration creates a framework and audit program ensuring specific procedures are in place and are effective in ensuring companies deliver quality products and services and implies a global benchmark throughout the company in customer satisfaction.

"I'm extremely proud of the Springwise team for achieving ISO:9001:2008 registration as it is a significant milestone in our journey to become the premier service provider in the facility management industry" said Joshua D. Pola Vice President for Springwise. "This was a major company objective for 2009 and we are the first facility management company to have these certifications. As a management team, we feel strongly that our commitment to quality differentiates our service offering and positively impacts the experience customers have with Springwise." added Mr. Pola.
